Samantha, the short brown baby chicken with blue eyes, hopped excitedly. Summer was finally here! That meant it was time for her and her friend, Lily, to lay their eggs. "Oh, Lily," Samantha chirped, "I can't wait to lay my eggs!"

Lily clucked in agreement. "Me too, Samantha! Let's make sure we lay them under the warm light in our den. "
Samantha nodded eagerly.

"Yes! That's the perfect spot! Our owners can easily reach them there. "
Every day, Samantha and Lily would fluff up the hay under the warm light, making it soft and cozy.

They imagined their eggs nestled there, safe and sound. They knew their owners loved fresh eggs for breakfast every morning, and they wanted to make them happy. Finally, the day came. Samantha laid her first egg, a beautiful brown speckled one.
