Emma and Lylah were figure skating at the ice rink. They loved to twirl and leap across the ice, feeling like graceful birds in flight. Suddenly, Lylah tripped on a patch of rough ice. With a cry, she fell hard, her leg twisting beneath her.

"Emma! " Lylah cried out in pain. Emma rushed to her friend's side.
"Lylah!

Are you okay? " She saw the unnatural angle of Lylah's leg and knew it was bad. Without hesitation, Emma pulled out her phone and called 911. The paramedics arrived quickly and carefully took Lylah to the hospital, with Emma right beside her.

At the hospital, the doctor confirmed Lylah had broken her leg. The nurses gently put a cast on Lylah's leg. As they finished, Emma's eyes welled up with tears. "I'm so sorry, Lylah," Emma sobbed.

"Now you can't skate! "

Lylah smiled reassuringly at her friend, even though her leg throbbed.

"It's okay, Emma, it is fine. "

Emma looked at Lylah's brave face and managed a small smile back.

The End.
